

SHOWSTOPPERS

A community based drama and performance project encouraging learning through the arts.

Weekly sessions for anyone with a learning disability aged 16 years and over, run by Andrew Watson and Tammy Jones and a great team of volunteers.

Through the study of drama we aim to promote confidence and enjoyment and develop self-expression, self-awareness, friendship and cooperation within a fun, safe and trusting environment. Students are offered the opportunity to be fully involved in the planning and preparation of the sessions.

Since its inception in September 2015, Showstoppers has gone from strength to strength, with student numbers continually increasing, as the project has the most amazing group of volunteers providing the necessary support. These volunteers have a wide range of experiences including theatre, arts and culture, which have enriched all our students greatly leading to them being able to use their new found skills to benefit their everyday lives.
